From Rabbi Robert L. Wolkoff

Where Was G-d?

“It is not why I suffer that I wish to know, but only whether I suffer for Thy sake!” So said Rabbi Levi Yitzchok of Berditshev, one of the greatest of the Chasidic masters.

As we approach the anniversary of Kristalnacht, the pogrom that foreshadowed the Holocaust, it is natural for us to question how our suffering could have happened. Where was G-d in all of this?

Shall we say that G-d is not actively involved in the lives of individuals, but rather only with the broad patterns of life and existence? Then why do we pray, with at least some expectation of being heard? Why do we mention the names of specific people in need of help or healing if G-d doesn't deal with specifics?

Shall we instead say that G-d is indeed actively involved with each of us as individuals? Then must not G-d be held accountable for six million individual deaths, and suffering beyond measure? And considering the impersonal, mechanical style of the Nazi death machine, can we truly say that our suffering was for G-d's sake?

Shall we say that it was not G-d who was ultimately responsible, but rather human beings? But then how do we explain G-d's intervention in Egypt to free us from slavery? And how, looking at the other end of history, can we believe in a Messiah who will transform the world—but wouldn't come to Auschwitz?

Or shall we perhaps say that we overestimate the strength and power of G-d? Maybe G-d wished to prevent Auschwitz, but couldn't; wished to intervene, but lacked the ability to do so? Perhaps G-d was suffering with us, maybe even more than we did!

There are no answers, only questions. But there is something holy about those questions. They reflect the truth of another great Chasidic story. On one occasion, Rabbi Abraham Joshua Heschel of Apt cried for hours and hours, so great was his love for Israel, and so deep was the pain he felt at Israel's suffering. It happened that Reb Sussya of Anipol was visiting Apt that day, and he came to console the Apter. “Did not G-d command us to be joyful?” asked Reb Sussya. “Sussya, Sussya,” replied the Apter, “what will become of you? Do you not feel the dreadful suffering and the bitter persecution to which the people of Israel are subjected?” “Yes,” replied Reb Sussya, “I feel them. But it is written in the holy Zohar that G-d inflicts on mankind only as much suffering as it can endure.”

And in that, I think, there is some small comfort—enough, at least, to give us the strength to keep on questioning.

From Cantor Bruce Rockman

I Can Do Better

As our calendars approach the end of the most deadly year in the history of our country, I imagine that it will be difficult to celebrate Thanksgiving. Our congregational family is not immune to the pandemic. We have experienced the loss of loved ones and our community has been rocked by our inability to gather; all of our celebrations have been subdued.

Still, we look for the silver lining, we are thankful to all of our congregational professionals and volunteers who continue to maintain the mission of B'nai Tikvah, to build a Jewish community that is open and caring through the understanding of our tradition.

Our tradition teaches the world exists because of three things: Torah — Jewish learning, Avodah — worship, and Gemilut Hasadim — acts of loving kindness.

Although our current crisis challenges us, we can certainly continue our mission. We look for a silver lining, as we Zoom services, Zoom religious school and Zoom acts of kindness. You probably agree with me that performing these functions are less effective than when we engage with each other, but they are possible.

I fear that many of us will be passive. As I analyze my engagement in our traditions, I recognize that we are dealing with a moving, changing target. As long as we believe that the pandemic will end sooner rather than later, we may spend too much time on the sidelines and our instincts will dull. How many Zooms can the kids take? Gathering is too dangerous! There is so much great TV these days!

Our tradition teaches the world exists because of three things: Torah — Jewish learning, Avodah — worship, and Gemilut Hasadim — acts of loving kindness.

It is important that we each examine our personal commitment to our traditions. Do you engage in Jewish learning? Are you developing a personal relationship with G-d? Are you committed to doing acts of kindness?

I'm confident that many of our congregational family are continuing their wholehearted engagement in acts of kindness, raising awareness for worthy causes such as our USY food drive and “Making Strides Against Breast Cancer.” These are quintessential Jewish charitable initiatives. But this is not the entire story.

I suspect that most of us find the other two stated Jewish traditions, learning Torah and worship, less exciting and engaging than doing acts of kindness. Organized events, where we can be with others,

What Next?

Now that the High Holy Days are behind us, what is next? The not-so-short answer includes (and is not limited to) Daily Minyan or Shabbat Services that a limited number of members can attend in person; Rabbi Wolkoff's Tuesday night alternating Lecture or Ask the Rabbi Zoom; Rabbi Wolkoff's Wednesday Lunch and Learn; Virtual Comedy Night and a repeat of the highly successful Virtual Trivia Night.

For services, you can sign up on the WhatsApp group, contact Gordon Heit, Vice President for Ritual, or contact our office. Contact Cantor Rockman to sign up for the WhatsApp minyan group. For Rabbi Wolkoff's Zoom programs, use the appropriate link on our synagogue website, bnaitikvah.org, to join the Zoom. For Virtual Comedy Night or Virtual Trivia Night, there will be separate flyers and information on our website. Remember, we are mostly virtual now due to the pandemic. The safety of our membership, staff, renters and visitors to our building is our priority.

Those are some of the things your leadership and clergy are doing. More important than that, what do you want to see Congregation B'nai Tikvah do? As I have said many times during the years when I was the Chairperson of the Budget and Finance Committee, I do not pretend to have ALL the answers; I still do not. In this pandemic situation neither our Board nor our Executive Committee nor our Clergy can have all the answers. Please contact any member of our Board of Trustees, Executive Committee, Rabbi Wolkoff, Cantor Rockman, our Administrator, Lesley Lewkowicz, or me with any ideas you have. We are here to serve you. You can reach me at president@bnaitikvah.org. Please do.

PREJUDICE

by Ben Baum

Little Children,
Seeds of bias planted,
Learning that different is not good,
That those people are inferior,
That they are not to be trusted.

Seeds that germinate,
That multiply,
That if not counteracted,
Expand exponentially,
And consume the carrier.

Permitted to evolve unchecked,
The seeds become plants of hate,
Coming to fruition,
Enveloping the individual,
Clouding the truth,
Affecting a lifetime.

The winds of hate,
Fanned by the dealers of propaganda,
By the voices of division,
By the cults of self-declared supremacy.

Sadly prejudice blinds,
Negates the ability to appreciate diversity,
To see the wonders of all humans,
Not just those like you.

Cyrus Steel, selected by HBO for the Comedy Wings Competition, as part of the American Black Film Festival, has been performing onstage for years, but fell in love with stand-up comedy soon after graduating from college. Growing up in the small town of Savannah, Georgia, Cyrus moved to Atlanta in 2005, quickly establishing himself as one of Atlanta's top comics and a master impressionist, imitating everyone from Kevin Hart, Bill Cosby, to Barack Obama (and even Donald Trump)! Dedicated to giving his audience more than a show, in addition to being a part of HBO's Comedy Wings competition, Cyrus most recently has performed for FOX's "Showtime at the Apollo" and NBC's "America's Got Talent."

Jeff Shaw is a stand-up comic. His writing is marked both by idealism and humanity. His stimulating satire is often infused with a singular poetic beauty. More important, he looks like Rod Stewart. Over the past three decades, Jeff Shaw has performed nearly 9,000 shows across North America and the Caribbean, including a residency in Las Vegas. Although Jeff's standing-ovation-receiving appearance on Season 15 of "America's Got Talent" went unaired due to a shortened 2020 "AGT" schedule, clips from Jeff's 2019 Dry Bar Comedy special "Manly Girly Man" have a combined 10 million views on Facebook and a combined 600,000 views on YouTube. In 2009, Jeff helped launch the Punchliner Comedy Club chain for Carnival Cruise Line, where he's known as Jeff "the Fun Dude," and was the club manager and house MC on the Carnival Dream.

Best Sukkot Ever!

Laura Waksman

This may have been the best Sukkot ever. The best? Really?? During these strange times?

Let me explain. Sukkot is my favorite holiday- it takes place in the fall- my favorite season. I love that it carries so much meaning - the fragility of life, as the Sukkah's impermanence leaves us vulnerable to wind and rain and cold. But this year- no rain! We had beautiful bright sunshine and mild temperatures every single day! We haven't had a Sukkot without rain in recent memory. It's unheard of.

So what did this mean for me?

I spent many hours in the Sukkah enjoying the sun peeking through the schach, tuning in to CBT services while facing our family's "Kotel fabric" that has hung in our Sukkah for at least 14 years, and thinking, planning, taking notes, making phone calls, and sending emails regarding Social Action. It was productive time made all the more meaningful by being spent in the Sukkah.

So what came of it? By the time of this reading, we will have hopefully done at least one project to benefit Elijah's Promise, whose executive director is CBT's own Michelle Wilson. Through our contact with a New Brunswick school social worker, we have given a generous Walmart gift card to a family who lost all their belongings due to a fire.

I am pleased to introduce the CCC- Community Collections Closet, a permanent place in an unused nursery school classroom that will allow us to conduct collection drives throughout the year and safely store many items. Thank you, Lesley, for helping me with that one. Our first collection, from November 1 through December 15, will be clean, gently used winter coats for adults and children and NEW socks and underwear. Please call the office before dropping off any items.

A must share: Please read and learn about the Jewish non profit Worldofgiving.org – Olam Chesed. Rabbi and Rebbetzin Roizman made an observation, dreamed, planned and worked hard to bring their dreams to fruition. I am awed by what they have accomplished. I know you'll be inspired.

Our Zoom meeting will take place Wednesday, November 18 at 8 PM. Everyone is welcome. Please contact me at Laurawaksman@gmail.com if you want to come to the meeting, or if you have any questions or ideas. Together.....let's make a difference.

This Year's Services

Gary Bergman

For more than ten years, my wife, Bobby, and I have been missing out on the true High Holiday Service experience. Bobby, along with Ann Rosenzweig and the Welsher clan, has spent almost all of the time in the lobby, working at the Honors Desk. She enjoys greeting all the congregants who stop by the desk to check-in with their honors.

This year, we participated, sort of, in the comfort of our family room where we tuned in to the entire Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur services for the first time by using the large TV connected to a computer. Thanks to the efforts of Ben Gottesman, Danny Greenberg, Kim Riemann, and others, we almost felt as if we were present in the sanctuary.

Hoping next year we can leave our electronics aside and resume our duties to help services go smoothly and warmly greet all those who take part in our Jewish traditions.

including family, friends, and like-minded individuals, is invigorating. Praying and learning in a vacuum is not optimum. Praying and learning are inspiring and will add perspective to our already meaningful lives.

Unlike a rally, a service, or an exciting event, you will need to dip your toe in the water before you feel the warm embrace of prayer and Jewish learning. Let me help you. Let's talk about it. I know I can do better.

Our tradition teaches the world exists because of three things: Torah — Jewish learning, Avodah — worship, and Gemilut Hasadim — acts of loving kindness.
